Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Excerpt from Journal of the Statistical and Social Inquiry Society of Ireland, Vol. 29: January, 1865 In any other transaction anything like the claim for tenant-right would be thought too absurd for argument. Mr. Patrick Murphy takes a fancy to my hunter and Offers me 120 guineas for it. He gets it, and then complains that the horse is too dear. I Offer to take back the horse and give him back his money. He wont agree to that. He says that the horse suits him, and that he is determined to keep it, and only to pay such a price as will enable him to sell it the next day at cent. Per cent. Profit. This would be exactly analogous to the claim of-tenant-right. In the case of the sale of land the injustice of the demand would be equally apparent: Mr. Murphy Offers me 3000 for my land, and induces me to give him up the possession Of it. He then complains that the price is too dear. I am ready to give him back the money, if he will give me back the land, or I find a person who will gladly give him 100 for his bargain. He refuses he says he must keep the, land, and refer the price to some friends of his who will value it on this novel principle, that the price which every man in the country would be ready to pay for it shall not be taken into consideration in estimating the value. This is the supposed tenant-right, substituting merely a setting instead of a sale. Some reason must be given for making land an exception to the ordinary rules ofcommerce, and fixing...
