Austin Macauley Publishers, United Kingdom, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Central to the future direction of mankind on planet Earth is the belief that the origination and design of the Universe and the plan by which it operates are the work of one almighty creator. If one follows the view that a motor car comes into existence by way of the design and manufacture process or that a building is the end result of the design and construct process, then it is a simple progression to believe that the Universe and its modus operandi were designed and brought into existence by one superior being. Peter Vanser, an avid star gazer and amateur astronomer, has for several months been watching rapidly moving lights over the Pacific Ocean off the Gold Coast in Australia. The Commanding Officer of a mission from the Planet Gronorg, in the Orion Constellation, has been attempting to communicate with Earthian leaders via coded transmissions, all to no avail. The mission commander, Mar Zedok, wants to land on Earth to convey important information on an impending attack by an aggressive alien civilization. Vanser is approached personally by a Gronorgan operative and is invited to visit Gronorg to experience their social fabric and intelligence.
