Samuel Gorman, Delivered April 16, 1865 O how much is included in this short expression! And as I look upon that significant motto which overhangs this sacred place; as I look around upon the draped walls of this sanctuary, and behold these unmistakable tokens of the deep, unutterable emotions of grief which fill the heart of every truly patriotic citizen of our country this morning; and as I think of the cause of such universal sorrow, I feel that I am very unable to deliver a discourse which will do justice to such an extraordinary event. The Nation mourns! Yes, from the Lakes to the Gulf, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, every loyal bosom swells and heaves with sorrow. And well we may sorrow. This is no childish grief. It is a rational, a manly grief. Let us give vent to it in every suitable way. The cause demands it. Don t suppress it. It would...
