Time Warner International, 1991. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. Dust Jacket Condition: New DJ. First Edition NL with 1. Time Warner International 1991 First Edition NL with 1 New/New DJ Editorial Reviews Cornwell, a former seminarian turned agnostic, took a year's leave from his job as a journalist in order to investigate contemporary paranormal religious occurrence, mostly within a Catholic context. He explores the authenticity of phenomena reported in Yugoslavia, Spain, Canada, Italy, and even the Bronx, New York. An Irish nun with a healing ministry appears several times in the book, as do several Jesuit priests, which helps convey the more-or-less official church views. Cornwell writes with color and strong personal bias and often employs severe characterization. However, healthy skepticism plays an important role in seeking evidence to justify faith. Does divinity hide within weeping statues, stigmatics, or shrouds Cornwell suggests the answers lie within the seeking heart, and in discarding false idols through a skeptical approach. For general collections.- Anna Donnelly, St. John's Univ. Lib., Jamaica, N.Y. 1991 From Kirkus ReviewsIn his excellent A Thief in the Night (1989), Cornwell looked into rumors that Pope John Paul I had been murdered. Here, the former seminarian conducts a yet more subtle and meaningful investigation--of the ``incidence and significance.of paranormal religious phenomena": flying monks, weeping statues, divine apparitions, and the like. A professed agnostic, Cornwell a few years ago found his nonbelief undermined when he experienced a prophetic ``religious dream." His curiosity aroused, he set off on a worldwide hunt for earthly signs of a divine hand, beginning with a visit to the Yugoslavian town of Medjugorje, where, for years, three children have allegedly been conversing daily with the Virgin Mary. Although repulsed by the commercialization of the phenomenon--with souvenir- vendors and millions of tourists creating a ``spiritual Disneyland"--Cornwell found the...
