WALLS, BARE WALLS

CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 80 pages. Dimensions: 7.8in. x 5.1in. x 0.2in. A collection of poems reflecting the journey of a soul. The poems in this book have covered different topics and moods. I found that writing poetry was a very liberating experience, when I saw something bad around me or something bad happened to me or someone else told me about it; writing a few lines of a poem, not necessarily what I had just seen, happened to me or told; made me feel better. And when I was happy, writing a few lines increased my happiness and joy. Although some poems might have autobiographic element, but overall, it is not an autobiographic work. The poems in this book have my experiences, as well as, other peoples experiences and some experiences, which are universal. My favourite poem in the book is Walls. The poem is about loneliness, which is physical, as well as intellectual and spiritual. There are two kind of walls mentioned in the poem, the actual walls, which are prison walls in the poem and the walls we make between ourselves and others in our minds. A few lines from the poem: Those walls, bare walls many times I passed by Cold stones and hard wires stood up and high Silence, deep silence, so deep but not dignified I thought of sorrows of dark and lonely night And about lack of love my sadness magnified The day came and everything was in my sight This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
