PROGRESSIVE AGRICULTURAL PROGRAMS (CLASSIC REPRINT)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Progressive Agricultural Programs In Schools: Have pupils write language lessons about vegetables. Have them make posters with vegetables. One-minute talks about vegetables would be good. Offer a simple prize for the child that finds out the most interesting fact about vegetables during the week. Have each child pledge himself to try to eat with relish some vegetable he or she has formerly disliked. Give a prize for the best vegetable game that is invented. Have pupils write vegetable letters, praising vegetables to some far-distant friend. In Towns: Get dealers interested in boosting sale of vegetables. Have them get up special window displays of vegetables, laying particular emphasis on their health value. Also have them work up special interest in gardening and seeds from a vegetable standpoint. If the Extension worker has many fine recipes new and especially good, for the preparation of the most common vegetables, get them mimeographed and put them on the counters of grocery stores for distribution to the customers. Home Economics girls from high school and public school could conduct demonstrations in these stores, showing new and appetizing ways to cook vegetables. Give everybody who enters a sample. The dealers will usually be glad to furnish the vegetables free of charge. In downtown windows, demonstrations of vegetables could be carried on. A fine program might be arranged such as: 1st day: vegetables for the babies, their preparation, etc.; 2nd day: vegetables for the sick; 3rd day: vegetables for the ordinary meal; 4th day: new ways of preparing common vegetables; 5th day: comparative food value of vegetables and other foods.
