THE CAUSE OF THE SECESSION OF THE SOUTHERN STATES. Government is a conservative institution. The purpose for which it exists is to preserve, not to revolutionize, or destroy. We dwell upon this truism--because many people seem to have lost sight of the truth in it. The Southern States in seceding from the Union were resisting, not making a revolution. The Northern States, and the Federal government under their control, under the pretence of preserving the Union, were making a revolution; destroying one government legally established, and putting in its place a disguised representation of it, but which was really a usurping tyranny. When the thirteen colonies declared themselves free and independent States, breaking off their connection with Great Britain, they did so on the claim that, on the principles of English constitutional liberty, each colony had the exclusive right to tax itself, and the British parliament, in which they were not represented, had no right to tax them. They made great use of this argument; yet it was, as they used it, of little value as a principle in government, for it expressed but half the truth in it, suppressing the more valuable half, and making it substantially a falsehood. Unless the tax-payers, who furnished the means necessary to the support of government, can say how much is necessary for its support; unless they have the power to limit taxation, they have no security for their rights. And the best security...
