Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Special. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Essential Reading on the rapid rise of ISIS and how it will influence global organised crime. Da esh / ISIS / ISIL / Islamic State is the biggest threat to the world since the Ice Age. That sound dramatic but in terms of its ability to destabilise the world, politically and economically, even world wars have had limited impact. Da esh has no geographical boundaries. It has no political opposition. It uses technology to function, recruit and communicate in ways that none of history's great armies could conceive of. Da esh has an appeal to certain types of individual who, in simpler times might have joined a street gang or run away with the circus. It convinces vulnerable people that there is glory, charisma and heroism in joining it. And yet, much of its growth and the reasons for success are to be found in the way that the world functions. Da esh is able to identify characteristics within societies and exploit them. To use the current, vogueish, term, Da esh is able to identify exploits and hack the world. Researched and written by Nigel Morris-Cotterill, a 20+ year veteran of developing strategies to combat financial crime, this special issue of World Money Laundering Report identifies and explains the opportunities that Da esh (and other groups) are able to use to their advantage. Releasing the title, Morris-Cotterill said Da esh is like water in cracks in rocks in winter: as it hardens, it makes even the tiniest cracks turn into major structural weaknesses. This is not a problem caused by Islam: Da esh / ISIS is a criminal gang which has developed techniques that exploit tiny weaknesses and hacks into them...
