Explicit Building Block Multiobjective Evolutionary Computation: Methods and Applications (Paperback)

By Richard O Day

Biblioscholar, United States, 2012. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . This dissertation presents principles, techniques, and performance of evolutionary computation optimization methods. Evolutionary computation concepts examined are algorithm convergence, population diversity and sizing, genotype and phenotype partitioning, archiving, BB concepts, parallel evolutionary algorithm (EA) models, robustness, visualization of evolutionary process, and performance in terms of effectiveness and efficiency. Additional contributions include the extension of explicit BB definitions to clarify the meanings for good single and multiobjective BBs and a new visualization technique is developed for viewing genotype, phenotype, and the evolutionary process in finding Pareto front vectors. The culmination of this research is explicit BB state-of-the-art MOEA technology based on the MOEA design, BB classifier type assessment, solution evolution visualization, and insight into MOEA test metric validation and usage as applied to the following: test suite, deception, bioinformatics, unmanned vehicle flight pattern, and digital symbol set design MOPs.
