It is the principle which impels us to the performance of the duties of life, in all its varied relations, making the friend trusty, the citizen correct, the judge upright, the soldier. Faithful, the statesman incorrupt, woman chaste and man honest. It is the brightest jewel in the monarch's crown, the fairest tower in the hero's chaplet, a gem of pearly beauty even in the hovels of poverty and despair. How happy a theme for the consideration of young men about to enter on the theatre of life! When Christopher Columbus sailed from the harbor of Palos, on his first voyage of discovery, amid the prayers and supplications of the multitude assembled on the shore, he embarked upon an unknown and untravelled ocean, but he carried with him the unerring load-stone, faithful to direct his course upon its trackless waves. In all the vicissitudes of calm and storm, of sunshine and darkness, the needle would be still true to its office. How much did its possession diminish the dangers of that daring and perilous voyage! Happy would it be for frail human nature, if, when we embark on the stormy sea of life, we could secure some such moral guide, some sure index which, when tossed on its billows, should, like the mariner's compass, point us still to the polar star of happiness....
