There are three guiding forces that influence the Feng Shui of a residential space and they are: 1) Individual Influence: Each person has a unique need for the space. Individual requirements are one of the main considerations when the Feng Shui of a home is evaluated. 2) Space Influence: Based on its layout, orientation and surroundings, each house has a unique Feng Shui. 3) Time Influence: Luck and fortune of a person change with time, so does the Feng Shui of a home. While Individual and Space Influences are unique to the family members and the house, Time Influence of the Feng Shui are the same for everyone. After the Feng Shui of your home has been evaluated with the Individual and Space Influences by an expert, it is still important to consider the effects of time has on Feng Shui each year. While the Time Influence is generally considered minor comparing with the other two forces, it behaves like a catalyst. It can potentially trigger the major effects, both good and bad. In this guide, Master Yanyi explains the principles as well as provides examples and photos that allow us to avoid the bad influence and make better use of the good influence. After carefully studying this guide, the reader can be well-informed on how to make modifications to the Feng Shui of his or her home in the DIY fashion. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
